Promoting agriculture is a side goal to what we all do, but Eta collegiate members have recently landed the opportunity to do so through publication in the Iowa State Daily. Brother Andrew Lauver, "2061", has landed a job as an agricultural opinion columnist where, with the help of other Eta actives, he will submit 600-800 word pieces weekly on current events in agriculture. It is more important than ever that we provide a strong voice for agriculture on campus. Below is a link to the first of Brother Lauver's articles, and you may follow future articles through www.iowastatedaily.com.

Posting Jobs

On Tuesday, October 16, College of Agriculture and Life Sciences students will attend the Ag Fall Career Day. This is an important day for Eta actives, offering networking, internship, and full-time job opportunities. Per an alumni feedback idea for the newsletter, an additional networking opportunity could be held through the posting of job opportunities by Eta alumni. At this time, we encourage any postings via email response, but are looking to create a dual-sided posting page for Eta actives and alumni to share and professionally network.

Entrepreneurship Scholarship

Winner of the 2012 Murray Wise Associates Agriculture Entrepreneurship Scholarship, Brother Colin Hurd, "2069", plans to build upon his business idea, "TrackTill", which is aimed at solving the issue of soil compaction. Hurd created an attachment to a planter that would reduce this compaction, thus increasing the overall yield in the fields, and is currently working towards a patent.
